How can rules show our values?	Agnostic	 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control; against such things there is no law. Galatians 5:22-23  This verse reminds Christians that when we are led by the Spirit, we will produce fruit that is good and pleasing to God. Humanists actively seek to live good lives without following a religion. Their moral values are based on human nature and life experiences. Humanists base their moral principles on reason, shared human values and respect for others. They believe people should work together to improve the quality of life for all. Thinkers such as Charles Darwin, Marie Curie and George Eliot have all influenced Humanism.	- Identify and explain beliefs about why people are good and bad. - Make links with sources of authority that tell people how to be good (e.g. Christian ideas of 'being made in the image of God' but 'fallen', and Humanists saying people can be 'good without God') - Make clear connections between Christian and Humanist ideas about being good and how people live. - Suggest reasons why it might be helpful to follow a moral code and why it might be difficult, offering different points of view. - Raise important questions and suggest answers about how and why people should be good. - Make connections between the values studied and their own lives, and their importance in the world today, giving good reasons for their views.
